ABSTRACT

This library skills test was designed to assess university students' knowledge of and ability to use sources of information commonly found in a college or university library with a particular emphasis on the literature of political studies. It is divided into three parts: (1) matching and completion questions assessing students' familiarity with the terminology of library and information science; (2) multiple choice questions assessing awareness and understanding of the standard reference tools and bibliographic aids in political science; and (3) true/false, alphabetizing, and completion questions assessing searching skills, procedures, and techniques. An answer key is not provided. (JPF)

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER _____

The following test is designed to assess your knowledge of and ability to use sources of information commonly found in a college or university library with a particular emphasis upon the literature of political studies.

It should be emphasized that this test will be scored rather than graded, that is, it is not used to "rate" students—no one "passes" or "fails." Therefore, there is no need to guess, in fact, it is better that you do not. Upon first taking this test, it is not expected that you will be able to answer all or even most of the questions correctly. This testing procedure is for diagnostic purposes only, to mark for your benefit your strengths and weaknesses in the use of an academic library. Using this information you may take advantage of the library instructional services available at the SSU Library. This instruction will help you gain whatever library skills are needed to enable you to use a library independently and with confidence. Following such instruction, a similar test will be administered to measure your inprovement.

There is no time limit on this test. You may take as much time as you need to complete it. It is required only that it be completed here in this room and that the time of beginning and finishing be noted in the blank spaces below.

Even before the scored tests are returned and appropriate library instruction is indicated, it may become apparent to you that you need some particular, immediate help in using the library. In that case, check at the GET HELP HERE desk in the library. The librarian on duty will be glad to assist you.

SECTION I: LIBRARY TERMS

A familiarity with the terminology of library and information sciences is essential for the effective utilization of a library and its resources. The two following exercises are based upon some of the more common library terms.

A. On the line before each term put the letter corresponding to the definition which fits the term.

1. ___Abstract	6. ___Citation	11. ___Reserves
2. ___Bibliography	7. ___Cross reference	12. ___Secondary source
3. ___Biography	8. ___Index	13. ___Subject heading
4. ___Call number	9. ___Periodical	14. ___Supplement
5. ___Subject catalog	10. ___Primary source

a. Titles likely to be in great demand because of an instructor's recommendation or course requirements and temporarily set aside for short-term loan only.

b. A note of reference to a source of information.

c. Material which is based upon the reports, analyses, or interpretive writings of other researchers.

d. A systematic list facilitating subject, author, and title access to the text of books, newspapers, and periodicals.

e. Symbols used to indicate the location of a book on the shelves, usually composed of the classification number and the author number.

f. Brief summary of the contents of a document accompanied by a bibliographic citation enabling the entire publication or article to be retrieved.

g. Material which has not been interpreted by another person.

h. Account of a person's life.

i. That portion of the card catalog arranged in alphabetical order by subjects.

j. A statement directing one from one term (or subject area) to another, either a synonym, a more general term, or a more specific term which helps to relate information in one subject area to that of another.

k. A list of books and/or other materials, usually on a given subject.

l. A word or group of words indicating a subject under which all material dealing with the same theme is entered in a catalog, bibliography, index file, etc.

m. The continuation of a book or periodical containing corrections or additions which are sometimes bound within the covers of the publication and sometimes issued as a separate publication.

n. A publication, normally issued at regular intervals under the same name, which usually contains articles by several contributors.

B. Using words and/or phrases from the list below, fill in the blanks in the statements following the list. Place the letter corresponding to the correct word or phrase in the appropriate blank.

a. added entry	m. multimedia
b. art print	n. pamphlet
c. audiotape	o. phonodiscs
d. author	p. preface
e. chronology	q. slides
f. copyright date	r. subject
g. Dewey Decimal	s. subtitle
h. film	t. table of contents
i. interlibrary loan	u. text
j. Library of Congress	v. title
k. microfiche	w. title page
l. microfilm	x. videotape

The (1)_____ classification scheme is based on numbers used decimally and divides knowledge into ten classes, whereas, the (2)_____ classification system uses letters and numbers to classify the fields of knowledge into twenty main groups.

To find out what important events were taking place at a given time in history one would consult a (3)_____.

The first important printed page of a book which contains the title, author, place of publication, publisher, and sometimes date of publication is called the (4)_____.

When a student cannot find a specific item in his/her own library, it may be requested through (5)_____ from another library.

When evaluating a book, check the (6)_____ to determine its scope, the (7)_____ to discern the author's purposes, point of view, emphasis, etc., the (8)_____ for how recently the book was published, and read a few passages here and there throughout the (9)_____ to gain some notion of the style of writing, the author's biases, etc.

Several kinds of non-print materials likely to be found in a large library collection are (10)_____, (11)_____, (12)_____, (13)_____, (14)_____, and (15)_____.

SECTION II: SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Sources of information in all fields of knowledge—indexes, abstracts, bibliographies, handbooks, encyclopedias, manuals, etc.—are constantly being developed and refined. Accessing information in political studies requires an awareness and understanding of the discipline's standard reference tools and bibliographic aids. In many instances there is no "right" or "wrong" source for satisfying a given information need. Success depends, instead, upon a careful analysis of the question and the potential resources for answering it.

Indicate the most appropriate source for locating the following information.

1. An authoritative introductory discussion of John Locke's political theory and a concise bibliography of works on and by Locke.

   A. The Student Political Scientist's Handbook

   B. Social Sciences Index

   C. SSU Library Card Catalog

   D. Sociological Abstracts

   E. International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences

   D. A Reader's Guide to the Social Sciences (Hoselitz)

   E. International Bibliography of Political Science

8. Text of the August 5, 1974 hearings before the Senate Subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure to consider the potential economic and environmental impact of outer continental shelf gas and oil drilling in Massachusetts.

   A. Index to Legal Periodicals

   B. Selected Rand Abstracts

   C. Urban Affairs Abstracts

   D. Monthly Checklist of State Publications

   E. Congressional Information Service (CIS)

9. Articles on "Colonialism and Imperialism" published in 1973, 1974, or 1975 in the Journal of Commonwealth and Comparative Politics, the Journal of Contemporary History, and the Journal of Modern African Studies.

   A. ABC Poli Sci

   B. International Index to Periodicals

   C. Index to the Times

   D. Monthly Catalog of Government Publications

   E. Peace Research Abstracts

10. Name of the official journal of the American Political Science Association.

   A. Almanac of American Politics

   B. Foundation Directory

   C. Research Centers Directory

   D. Encyclopedia of Associations

   E. U.S. Library of Congress. New Serial Titles

SECTION III: SEARCHING SKILLS, PROCEDURES, AND TECHNIQUES

As previously indicated, understanding library terms and having an awareness of the kinds of materials available in the library—books, periodicals, government publications, films, audio and video tapes, phonodiscs, slides, and games (and the bibliographic tools which cite references to information contained in those materials)—are basic to making the best use of the library for locating information. Equally essential are certain skills one must possess and certain procedures one must follow for independent library use. The exercises below illustrate the importance of these skills, procedures, and techniques.

A. Indicate whether each of the statements below is true or false.

1. _____ Although the library's card catalog describes the content and location of most materials in the general collection, there are as a rule many items in the library that are not identified in the catalog.

2. _____ The only important information in libraries is in printed form.

3. _____ Abbreviations found in the card catalog are filed exactly as they are printed on the cards.

4. _____ The purpose of library classification is to bring materials on the same subject together.

5. _____ The quickest and easiest way to find information on any subject in the library is to browse through the stacks.

6. _____ Periodical articles may be located through proper use of the card catalog.

7. _____ Words/phrases (tracings) found at the bottom of a main entry card may be used to find additional material on the same subject.

8. _____ Official publications of rulers may be found in the library catalog under the name of the ruler's office followed by the name of the political unit. Example: Prime Minister. Canada.

9. _____ Names beginning with "Mc" and "M'" are arranged in library catalogs as if they were spelled "Mac."

10. _____ The constitutions of political units are entered in the card catalog under the name of the political unit immediately followed by the word "Constitution." Example: United States. Constitution.

B. Arrange the following call numbers in correct shelf order.

DU	GN	DU	TD	GN	DT	TD	D	TD	D
489	274	488	960	274	7508	960	811.5	499	811.5
Y4	B2	A5	W42	B2	Z489	W42	S5	L64	S483
	v.2			v.11		1971
____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____
____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____
____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____
____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____	____

C. Arrange the following titles in correct alphabetical order, WORD-BY-WORD, as you would expect to find them in the library's card catalog.

The Republican almanac

The Northern Pacific

Northwest Ethiopia; peoples and economy

North sea oil and gas

Northern Ireland parliamentary election results, 1921-1972

A North Carolina history

Nineteen nineteen

Northwestern University studies in the social sciences, no. 10

Northumberland: the political career of John Dudley

Nineteen seventy-two presidential campaign

North Atlantic Treaty Organization

1984 and beyond

Northeastern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission

And Northmen talk, tales from Iceland

XIXth century studies

In library research, information is often sought by subject as well as by title and author. Subject entries in the library catalog are sometimes simply filed alphabetically WORD-BY-WORD. In other instances, however, they may be filed according to historical periods or by the form of the entry, etc. In searching for information on a given subject, a library user should be aware of these various arrangements.

D. In the problems below, list the subject headings as they should be filed in the library catalog.

1. BROWNE, SIR THOMAS, 1605-1682 _____

   BROWN, J.H. _____

   BROWN AND SHAPPE MANUFACTURING COMPANY _____
